

English abstract

Divorce of a marriage

This thesis provides a comprehensive treatise on the institute of divorce of a marriage in Czech law order, with an emphasis on its position in former legislation, its development and the pitfalls of legislation which are with this institute connected. The thesis analyzes particularly its conditions, consequences and proceedings for divorce of a marriage. It focuses also on the ways of termination of the community property of spouses and its settlement, duty to support of children as well as the settlement of other rights and obligations between former spouses. It also includes alternative ways of resolving divorce of a marriage and comparison with the legislation of other European countries. All work is completed with related law and current case law.